Education

Doctorate of Philosophy (Computer Science). February 2016 – October 2019
PhD Thesis: Managing Tail Latency in Large Scale Information Retrieval Systems.
RMIT University, Melbourne, Australia.

Bachelor of Computer Science, Hons (First Class). February 2012 – November 2015
Honours Thesis: Efficiency-Effectiveness Trade-offs for Location Aware Search.
RMIT University, Melbourne, Australia.

Academic Positions

The University of Queensland – Senior Lecturer January 2026 – Ongoing

The University of Queensland – Lecturer January 2022 – December 2025
Teaching and Research in Computer Science, focusing on Information Retrieval, Data Structures and Algorithms.

The University of Melbourne – Postdoctoral Research Fellow February 2020 – January 2022
Worked with Prof. Alistair Moffat on the ARC Discovery Project Efficient Compression and Querying Techniques for Massive Text Collections.

Teaching Experience

The University of Queensland

- Algorithms & Data Structures – Course coordinator and Lecturer. 2023–2026
- Concurrency: Theory & Practice – Course coordinator and Co-Lecturer. 2025
- Advanced Database Systems – Course coordinator and Lecturer. 2022
- Introduction to Data Science – Course coordinator and Co-Lecturer. 2023

Research Interests

I am primarily interested in the efficient data structures and algorithms, and how they apply to practical problems. Most of my work has focused on the discipline of Information Retrieval, including efficient indexing, retrieval, and ranking. I am also interested in the evaluation of IR systems, and understanding user behavior. More recently, I have been interested in practical algorithms with applications in bioinformatics.
